

Some Poems are Clever

Michael E. Stone
August 2003

Some poems are clever,
With striking contrasts,
Metred aphorisms,
Incisive epigrams.

Others grow from seeing,
A vision of a center,
From which a poem ripples.

What shall I do,
When my sight is dull,
My vision fogged?

Wait ...

Michael Stone
April 2003.